Happy Fall, Ya'll!

We have made it through one full month already. I can hardly believe it!

We have been working hard setting the foundation and expectations for the new school year, we have been able to hang out with our old friends and make new ones!

All of the students have worked very hard completing beginning of the year assessments and have done a great job completing them!

Please remember that attendance is critical to your child's academic, social, and emotional successes. Please make sure he or she is here every day (unless he or she is sick or there is an emergency). Your child must be sent to school with a note from a guardian or doctor.

We have a lot that should be happening in October. Please be mindful of the schedules and calendars sent home.

Check your child's backpack for any important information or papers that need to be signed.

As always, please feel free to contact me at any time!

Let's continue to have a great year! Thank you for all that you do!

Prepare Your Child for Productive Days By:

- Eating healthy meals and snacks
- Getting to bed early
- Reading to someone every day
- Activating their critical thinking by asking 'why' and 'how' questions
- Designating a homework spot at home and competing homework there after school every day
- Encouraging him/her to do their best every day
